Laval Students Arrive Thurs.; Welcome at Station Planned

The Laval Exchange Weekend will get underway Thursday night, 10 pm at Windsor Station when 35 Laval students are expected to arrive at Montreal. The Weekend Exchange Committee urges as many students as possible to be on hand to meet the train and fraternize with these students as much as possible during their three day stay. At exactly the same time and place a contingent of University of Toronto students will be arriving as hosts of the University of Montreal where they will partake in a similar weekend exchange.

Room and Board

Many fraternities are providing room and board for the guests. The City of Montreal is providing a banquet at St. Helen's Island. Scope is presenting an art exhibit. Other parts of the program include another banquet in Redpath Hall, brunch in Newman House, visiting of McGill lectures. The Laval students will also participate in a Model Parliament and discussion of many university problems with McGill, U of M and the University of Toronto. David Silverberg who is co-ordinator for the Friday night program has also included a program of folk singing and dancing.

Pertinent Details

All pertinent details of these programs will be given in tomorrow's Daily. The McGill students are allowed to participate in most of these events and are strongly requested to do so by the Exchange Committee in order to make this weekend a success.

HUNGARIAN STUDENTS EXPECTED

The "Freedom Train" carrying a contingent of Hungarian students will arrive at Central Station on Sunday, January 20th at 10 AM.

The students will be welcomed by speakers from Sir George Williams, University of Montreal, and McGill. A regimental band will play the Hungarian National Anthem as the students arrive.

The Dean of the Hungarian school will speak to all present with the aid of an interpreter. All students who can speak Hungarian are invited and will wear a white badge with the letter 'H'. McGill students will have an opportunity to speak with the Forestry students through an interpreter.

The arrival of the Hungarian students will be publicized by means of television, radio, and newspapers.

McGill To Get $2,276,400

Quebec City, Jan. 15. (BUP) — Premier Duplessis tonight replied to Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent's offer of grants to Quebec Universities by substantially increasing the Province's contribution for 1957-58.

In the budget tabled by the Finance Minister, Onesime Gagnon, today, the Provincial Government set aside $13,153,700 towards university level education as compared with the $7,590,567 it granted last year. According to this information the grants are to be distributed as follows: McGill — $2,276,400; Laval University — $4,037,300; University of Montreal — $6,340,000; Sherbrooke University — $250,000; Bishop's College — $100,000; and Sir George Williams College — $100,000. This represented an additional $5,063,133 to Quebec Universities and colleges.

Quebec Artists Exhibit Works Friday; Governor-General Present At Opening

Quebec Paintings

H. W. JONES, Montreal artist, who is one of the 35 Canadian artists represented in a student-sponsored exhibition being opened Friday by the Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey.

Thirty five of the most representative of contemporary Quebec artists will show their works at an exhibition sponsored jointly by McGill and the University of Montreal. It will take place from January 18 to February 4 at the Museum of Fine Arts under the patronage of His Excellency, The Governor-General of Canada, who will open the exhibition.

Stimulus

In the past, the University of Montreal has held exhibitions of artists and sculptors in an attempt to encourage public interest and show the advance of the field of art in Quebec. However, it is hoped by the students that this joint exhibition, by bringing out a true representation of provincial art, will act as a stimulus to other universities and provinces so that they might follow the example and show to Canada the quality of work being produced on a national scale. A committee member also said that an exchange might be arranged between two or more universities.

Among those represented will be Marian Scott, Jean Dallaire, Paul Beaubien and Paul Emile Borduas, all of whom have been experimenting with plastic forms.

McGill Graduate Directs Hungarian Student Relief

Charles Taylor, one of Canada's Representatives on the WUS General Assembly, has been appointed to direct the efforts of the Special Co-ordinating Committee set up in Vienna to administer the international programme of aid to Hungarian students and faculty. He will have under him an international team of 35 student volunteers from 16 countries. The administrative expenses of the Coordinating Committee are met by a $30,000 grant from the Rockefeller Foundation, which has also provided $600,000 for a scholarship programme for students who remain in Austria.

Mr. Taylor has for the past five years been active in WUS in Canada and abroad; he is presently a member of the WUS International Executive, and was for two years a Vice-Chairman of the WUS General Assembly. He has also been active in the National Federation of Canadian University Students (NFCUS) of which he was, until recently, an Overseas Commissioner. A graduate of McGill, he went to Balliol College, Oxford, on a Rhodes Scholarship in October, 1952, and is now completing his Ph.D. at the University of Paris.

McGill Guests Of U of M Meds

The University of Montreal Medical School played host to approximately forty McGill medical students at an Open House at U of M last weekend.

Mrs. Lussier, Rector of U of M, and representatives of the medical faculty addressed the students Friday night. They were also shown a film on "Stress", depicting the work of Dr. Hans Selye, after which an informal discussion took place with members of the faculty.

U of M students will be invited to McGill the week-end of Feb. 1.

What's Within

We phoned a young lady the other day in that Victorian Citadel — RVC. The clamour that arose once the phone was unhooked can only be likened to the shout raised by the early Christmas when the Roman lions entered the arena. Shrieks, howls and an occasional voice like a drowning person clutching an anchor echoed and re-echoed along the hallways.

It often makes us wonder what sort of a place, architecturally speaking, the upper reaches of RVC are. What are they like, these no-mens-lands of the wings? From the audio-impression gained over the phone, they seem to be like immense railway tunnels stretching for miles along which voices echo. Or like some massive, highvaulted mausoleum where lonely voices disappear into the upper air.

It never helps of course that the one to whom you wish to speak lives at the very end of the wing or tunnel, or in the upper reaches of the mausoleum. Ask for a girl, and the next sound that prates upon the ear is the name bawled at the top of someones lungs. Again the name bounces down the hallway. If there are other girls in the tunnel they take up the cry until a whole Greek chorus is in action.

There has always been a certain reverence and awe in the attitude of men towards RVC. The huge neo-Gothic monstrosity that spreads along Sherbrooke with the stony Queen Victoria on constant guard has instilled a positive fear into the hearts of some males. However, the business of phoning RVC conveys such an odd impression of what parts of the interior might be like that much of the male awe evaporates. If we are to retain our deferential attitude towards this building, this concrete embodiment of McGill womanhood, might we suggest that guided tours be held to ensure that, perhaps, after all, RVC is not just one vast tunnel.

U.S. Collegiate Poll

Hungary And Freedom

Minneapolis. (ACP) — The inspired Hungarian revolt for freedom proved to the world there is still a desire for liberty and independence behind the Iron Curtain. But heartbreaking to freedom-loving nations of the world was their inability to give Hungarian freedom fighters anything but moral encouragement, lest other action precipitate a general war between the East and the West.

Associated Collegiate Press sought to gain collegiate opinion on this issue by asking the following question of a representative national cross-section of college students:

Do you feel there is any way, short of war, in which the United Nations can help Hungary regain its freedom?

The results: Men Women Total
Yes, is a way ... 51% 44% 48%
No, is no way ... 30% 24% 27%
Undecided ..... 19% 32% 25%

Roughly half of the students feel there are ways to aid Hungary in its attempt to regain freedom. The most common feeling seems to be that the free world, and especially the United Nations, should exert pressure of various sorts upon the Soviet Union, such as economic boycotts. Others feel diplomatic manoeuvres are the answer while some believe another summit conference is necessary. And a few students feel we should go as far as to threaten Russia with war. Here are a few typical responses:

A freshman coed at Jacksonville University (Jacksonville, Florida) believes the answer is "moral support and encouragement by the free nations," while a junior attending the Bernard Baruch School of Business, City College of New York, gives this observation: "We should place embargos on Russian trade and send UN observers into Hungary." And a

Letters To The Editor

Education With A Capital "E"?

The author George Ryley Scott wrote: "If twentieth-century man were to formulate a deity, he would not create an anthropomorphic godhead but a glorified robot..." As an aftermath to the panel discussion on possible stiffer entrance requirements, I am led to wonder if there is another step in a growing tendency towards education based upon how many facts one can cram into the cranial cavities.

According to a story in a weekly newsmagazine, allocation of prospective students to the various U.S. colleges and universities will be determined by the ability of candidates to pass a tough "scholastic aptitude test". Roughly, such a test is comprised of material that would go over quite well on those quiz shows: giving definitions and opposites of five-dollar words, recalling statements made by philosophers (who did quite well without attending universities in many cases), mathematical tricks etc. Replies are timed with a stop-watch.

Admitted Lack

Clearly, just because of an admitted lack of classroom accommodation, deliberate thinkers who are slower at problem-solving and who consider textbooks as the tools of their calling, will be kept out. In a clocked test, they mightn't have time to head for a dictionary in which the little-used rhetorical monstrosities are safely pigeonholed, etc.

Something More

After all, isn't education something more than the memorization of facts? Professor Einstein was junior attending the Newark College of Engineering (Newark, N.J.) puts it this way: "Exert more propaganda pressure; Russia is highly sensitive to world opinion."

Need War

Students who believe that there is no way short of war to help Hungary regain its freedom either feel that Russia is too strong to bully or that the UN is ineffective. A sophomore attending Georgetown University (Washington, D.C.) exemplifies this latter position as he says: "The UN is not able to enforce any decision it may make because of its internal organization." Here are several comments typical of other points of view:

No Alternative

"Unless Russia would relent, there seems to be no alternative other than war — much as we would hate to witness it," is the feeling of a sophomore coed at Villanova University (Villanova, Pa.). An Ohio University (Athens) senior has this to say: "As one of the two most powerful nations in the world today the U.S.S.R. will not allow outsiders to change its basic policy."

Can't Talk

"You just can't talk with Russia and get anything done," is the opinion of a Yakima Valley Junior College (Yakima, Wash.) freshman, and a freshman coed at Moorhead State Teachers College (Moorhead, Minn.) states bluntly: "Russia has already stated that there will be an all-out war if anyone interferes."

by his own admission unable to recall a lot of facts, which, as he put it, were in the textbooks to which he would refer when he needed them. The attitude of Samuel Johnson was that knowledge is of two kinds: you either know the subject yourself, or you know where to find information upon it.

In psychological practice, it has been observed that conscious memory of facts and even of single words decays with disuse. One can forget entire subjects learned in school by ceasing to be familiar with them by constant use.

The "scholastic aptitude test" is therefore little better than a memory test and a test of one's ability to relate certain terms and solve certain given problems within a fixed time limit. If it deprives a youth of an opportunity to acquire an education along cultural lines, it had better be dispensed with.

I must quote a pamphlet which still graces a bulletin board in the Biology building: "Students attend college not merely to pass examinations or to receive didactic instruction but to train their minds to think—"; "Education is something every man acquires for himself and it will never be available in capsule form"; "Culture is a state of mind produced by the things one has forgotten".

Sum Up

These three quotes practically sum up the point I'm attempting to make, yet there is still so much talk about special entrance tests, raising of matriculation standards and the like. If the main issue is one of freshman year failures, then surely some kind of help should be given to those who for reason of slower mental reflexes cannot keep up with the others. To deny these prospective "failures" admission to institutes of higher learning is not the answer, neither is the practice of showing them the door should they not make their first year.

Night School

If lack of space is the issue, then some sort of night school shift could possibly be a compromise with building expansion until the latter is possible. More government aid is a necessity, but not if this means state control. I haven't got all the answers to this problem, perhaps the reader can offer a few. I don't feel comforted by the possibility that education may degenerate to a mad contest between two huge monolithic powers for a maximum number of technicians, — and to hell with the slow, dreamy thinker who perchance may return us to a state of sanity.

Final Athletics Night Saturday, Water Polo, Boxing Featured

The second and final McGill Athletics Night will be held this Saturday in the Sir Arthur Currie Gymnasium at 8 p.m.

Intercollegiate basketball, water polo, women's volleyball, boxing and squash will headline the programme. Other features will be a swimming meet, exhibitions of judo and gymnastics, and dancing from ten p.m. on.

The Redmen Basketball team will play Western University in their second home game of the season. The Redmen defeated McMaster last weekend in their first game.

The McGill Water Polo team will take on a team from the New York Athletic Club. McGill's team have been intercollegiate champions in Canada for three years. Coach Barry Thompson feels his team is as good a team as there is on the continent in intercollegiate circles.

Notables on this year's team are Robbie Cook, veteran of many seasons at McGill, Charlie Evelyn who played on the Barbados International team and Bernie Toporowski.

Playing for New York Athletic Club, a team of Olympic calibre, are Frank Moorman, Ed Jaworski who played for the American team in the 1952 Olympics and Jim McLane, 1952 American Olympic swimming champ.

Starting at 7:30 p.m. N.Y.A.C. will compete with McGill in a swimming meet. McGill's team won the Canadian Intercollegiate title last year and is expected to win again this year.

Swimming for McGill are Lloyd Kishino, holder of several provincial records and the Canadian individual medley record, Jerry Anderson, and three noteworthy freshmen, Bob Hamilton, holder of several provincial records, Pete Rutherford, Dominion title holder in the butterfly, and Don Mackie.

Barry Thompson feels that this year's team has more depth than last year's.

Between halves in the water polo game, the diving part of the swimming meet will be held. Jerry Anderson a featured performer of this year's Water Show will head McGill's team. From New York Dick Wolley, internationally known diver, will be on hand.

The McGill Boxing team will fight against the Dartmouth University team. Former Canadian Intercollegiate Champs, Denny Repole, Pierre Raymond and Ossie Downs form the core of this year's team. Coach Bert Light said yesterday "the enthusiasm and ability of this year's team should make for a victory on Saturday Night." The team is working out every night this week.

The Canadian Intercollegiate Championship McGill Squash team will compete against the Jesters. The Jesters are an English organization, who have branches all over the world. They are well known among Montreal squash players and the matches promise to be excellent.

Playing for McGill this year is the Canadian Junior squash champ, Dave Pemberton-Smith, and the Canadian Intercollegiate Champ, Tim Wagg. The other team members are Tony Lafleur Don Johnston, John Haly, Henri Lafleur, Trevor Bishop and alternate Doug Brock.

Following the Athletics Night, dancing will take place in the gym to the music of Russ Dufort's Orchestra.

Braves Meet Gaels In Tussle At MWS

Johnny Meagher's intermediate Braves return to the ice wars tonight when they take on the Queen's Gaels from Kingston. The game is slated for a 7:30 start at the MWS, and admission is free.

The Braves, who have not played for some three weeks now, are expected to have their hands full as the visitors boast a club of Senior Intercollegiate calibre. Last week the boys from Kingston met the St. Lawrence University Saints at Canton, N.Y., and held their more experienced American opponents to a 6-4 victory. The Golden Gaels more than held their own as they were led by goal their scorers, Acland, Ede, and Hampton. Ede notched two goals for the losers.

On the home front, the McGill squad will show 'the new look' when they take to the ice tonight. Several players have left the team, while two or three reinforcements from the Redmen will be dressed.

Meagher will have his two goalers, Jerry Wasserman and 'Pocky' Chrysler, sharing the net minding chores. Ed Eberts, Jerry Letfoley, Jan Sandzelius, John Henderson, and possibly Russ Dibble will see blue line action for the Braves. Dave Outerbridge will center one of the attacking units, and he will be flanked by Pat Northey and Bob Jamieson. A second line will find Doug McGregor and Baz Baziw on the wings, with Joe Irvin playing in the middle. A third trio will be made up of Gordie Merritt, Neil Baker, and Keith Lawes.

Meanwhile, news from the Redmen camp indicated that Rocky Robillard's Senior outfit will be 'up' for this coming Friday's encounter with the University of Montreal. A win for McGill in this game will move them into a deadlock for the runner-up spot with the U of M.

WRESTLING

All wrestlers should note that the regular practices have already started. As the Intercollegiate wrestling championships are less than two months away, it is imperative that you come out regularly. The practices take place at 5 pm on Tuesdays and Thursdays as usual.

New Series Of Inter-Club Debates Starts Tomorrow

This term a series of inter-club debates will be initiated and sponsored by the McGill Debating Union. A special trophy has been donated to the Debating Union for this series.

The first of these inter-club debates will be held tomorrow. The Indian Club will oppose the Zionist Club at 1 p.m. in the Union Ballroom. The Indian Club will uphold the affirmative of the topic, "Resolved: that universities should stress a liberal education rather than a technical education."

The inter-club series will be held throughout the next few weeks during lunch-hours in the Students' Union. All interested students will be welcomed.

Highbrow Concert

Highbrows will be catered to at the Union this Thursday night when the McGill Union Programme Committee will present a concert by the Faculty of Music. The concert will begin at 8 pm in the Union Ballroom and everyone is welcome. Admission is free.

The programme is as follows: Purcell's Golden Sonata performed by Douglas Beder and Olga Zwarych violin, with Judith Forbes, piano; Hindemith's Duo in Canon Form played by Douglas Beder and Olga Zwarych, violin; Loell's Sonata for Two Flutes performed by Gail Grimstead and Alan Grant, flute and Lessy Ashcenazi, piano; Manfredini's Concerto No. 10 played by Edna Ginsberg and Robert Tessier, violin; and Lessy Ashcenazi, piano; Schubert's Sonata for Violin and Piano performed by Douglas Beder and Judith Forbes.

NEW HAVEN, Conn. — (UP) — A Yale University human affairs expert says "the greatest injustice which has been done to women is to make them equal to men."
